There were more than 35 international faculty expert in their field who delivered lectures or demonstrated techniques on video or in the operating sessions to augment and enrich the scientific content of the congress. All the sessions were conducted well. Sessions covered all the spectrum of plastic surgery from reconstructive to aesthetic.

Meet the Professor Sessions were conducted simultaneously in five halls for all the three days. Similarly Master Class sessions were also conducted simultaneously in five halls for all the three days. These sessions were taken with small group of delegates with the aim of focused in depth learning of the subjects. Programme continued in the single hall (Grand Ball Room) up to pre-lunch tea time for the important orations, names lectures and key note addresses. After tea break simultaneous breakaway sessions were conducted in different halls. Quality of free papers was good. Attempt was made to include maximum number of free papers for the podium presentation. In addition to above sessions, there was a special session to highlight microsurgery advancement happening in the country. It was liked very much by the delegates.

Attempt was made to inform each participant by email about the scientific programme and the time of presentation for each speaker. There were few technical snags observed during the congress like video not running or the presentation stopping in the middle. This happened to those who did not load the presentation in advance or loaded the presentation just prior to their presentation or tried present from the pen drives or lap tops. This did not allow for checking the presentation properly. In future programmes it should be made mandatory to load the presentation adequate time before the actual presentation to allow proper checking for smooth functioning.

Many members of the association came forward to help in conducting the sessions. We thank these members for their support and help. However the scientific programme would have had a much smoother functioning if more number of local members had come forward to help.

Over all scientific programme was received well by the delegates. Several delegates filled the feedback forms. Quantitative assessment of the quality of the scientific content is under process. The result of this will be conveyed soon.
